Karen Keith Responds to Outrageous Attack Ad: Monroe Nichols and Dark Money Groups Resort to Lies and Fear-Mongering

TULSA, OK - In a desperate attempt to distract voters from his inability to get things done and abysmal attendance record as a state legislator, Monroe Nichols and his dark money allies have launched baseless and vicious attack ads against Karen Keith, falsely alleging her involvement in misconduct at the Tulsa County Juvenile Justice Center. This claim is completely false and is a dangerous, cynical distortion designed to mislead voters.

"These ads exploit the horrific abuse of children and is nothing more than a smear campaign. It is utterly false that I or my fellow Commissioners ever knew that children were being sexually or physically abused and did nothing about it— and Monroe and his dark money allies know it's false.

"I've dedicated my career to serving Tulsa and protecting its citizens. Monroe Nichols' attempt to distort the facts and manipulate voters with outrageous accusations shows exactly why he is unfit to lead our city," said Keith.

As a County Commissioner, Karen Keith has a long-standing record of advocating for Tulsa's safety and well-being, particularly for the vulnerable populations she serves. Her commitment to transparency, accountability, and collaborative governance has made Tulsa County stronger, safer, and more united. This attack on her character is not only unfounded but demonstrates the desperate tactics of dark money groups and out-of-town activists who have no place in Tulsa's City Hall.
